

CHASE CUSTOMERS BEWARE

Chase is spending millions on advertising to announce its takeover of WaMu, yet it is simultaneously squeezing its existing customers, HARD.

Chase Bank is “quietly” converting existing customer credit card accounts to new rates and terms.

Hundreds of thousands of existing credit card account holders have seen Chase raise their minimum monthly payments from 2% of the balance to 5% of the balance. These accounts have had no late or missed payments -- accounts with responsible cardholders who make their monthly payments on time, every month.

Some accounts also saw an additional $10 service charge added each month. (The $10 per month service charge has since been withdrawn, due to a settlement with the New York Attorney General's Office.)

An increase from 2% to 5% is a 150% increase. So, for example, a minimum monthly payment of $300 becomes $750.

For people who are already struggling to make their monthly payment in a tough economy, this is a huge increase. Imagine having to make more than one Chase card payment each month...

The real motivation behind these changes is to force cardholders to give up special, fixed interest rate promotional credit card loans, originally offered by Chase to be “Until the Balance is paid in full.”

So, because Chase cannot change the interest rate of these “special” promotional loans, it has come up with a way to get cardholders to “voluntarily” allow the bank to change the terms (double the interest rate for a limited time, after which the rate will become the “standard” -- read HIGH -- variable rate). If these new terms are “voluntarily” accepted, Chase will again allow a 2% minimum payment.

Do not trust Chase Bank. How will Chase change the terms of your loan?

Daily-Protest.com This was Alessandro Machi's first Chase Bank protest blog, dedicated to his father who passed away less than 2 weeks after he started the blog:

“I did not think he was that close to passing. I actually opened my first Chase ‘love letter’ [changing terms] just a few feet from my father’s home hospice bed. Chase bank stole some precious moments from me and my dad. I was with my dad the entire time, except for my hour a day protest against Chase that started while my father was still alive.”
